Making a Difference

The Strategic Analysis, Research & Training Program (START) is expanding to become a center in the Department of Global Health. START began in 2011 as a faculty and student effort to provide analysis to the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. It has supported more than two dozen graduate students in Epidemiology, Global Health, Sociology, Business and Nursing who have completed more than 75 different projects on global issues from TB and pneumonia to the scale-up of oral rehydration salts. Under the direction of Judd Walson (GH, Epi) and Lisa Manhart (Epi, GH), the program will expand this fall to provide research and analysis to domestic-focused agencies, including Public Health - Seattle & King County. The START domestic program is led by Tao Kwan-Gett (HServ). Pictured: START students in the center's new office at Harris Hydraulics.
