Making a Difference

Coffee starts the day for people around the world, and its production is crucial to the economies of many developing countries like Nicaragua. But workers typically carry large, shallow baskets at their waists to hold the beans, causing back and shoulder pain. Kate Stewart (DEOHS) collaborated with other researchers to design a new light-weight bag that will help Nicaraguan coffee harvesters do their jobs more safely.

Around the Water Cooler

Two key people have joined the Bachelors of Public Health undergrad program, now housed at SPH: Susan Inman as Program & Advising Manager, and Tory Brundage as Advisor & Recruitment Coordinator. Susan leaves her position managing the BS degree in Environmental Health. Tory has been a Senior Admissions Counselor and Coordinator for Campus Visit Programs for the past two years.

Tolu Okitika (MPH student, DEOHS) wrote a quest column for the Guardian News in Nigeria on the neglect of chronic diseases. She noted diesel fumes, lead poisoning, polluted waters and other environmental health problems.
