SPH Holiday Party

Don't miss the School's Congrats!

SPH Endowed Fellowships of $5,000 each were awarded to PhD student Michael Arndt (Epi) and MPH student Aradhana Thapa (GH). A former member of the START program, Mike's research centers on intestinal diseases in Bangladesh. Aradhana has worked to prevent birth defects and disabilities among children in her native Nepal. See her video profile.

A policy resolution drafted by COPHP students and Amy Hagopian (HServ, GH), "Removing Barriers to Mental Health Services for Veterans," was approved by the governing council of the American Public Health Association.

Boris Reiss (DEOHS), a fourth-year PhD student, was selected to take part in the American Industrial Hygiene Association's 2014 Future Leaders Program.

Anna Wald (Epi), Jeanne Marrasso (GH), James Hughes (Biostat) and Lisa Manhart (Epi, GH) are part of a new UW-Fred Hutch center that was awarded $14.5 million from the NIH to investigate the human genital microbiome and its relationship to sexually transmitted infection.

Making a Difference

For her capstone project, Marina Furtado (eMPH grad, 2014) set up an immunization program at a remote orphanage in the foothills of the Himalayas in northeast India. Many of the Jhamtse Gatsal school's 90 children were unimmunized. Marina had to travel far and wide to find vaccines, and went door-to-door in nearby towns to find a refrigerator to keep them cold. An emergency room physician, she also provided medical care - one day resuscitating an 8-year-old boy who nearly died from eating poison berries. Right after she left, Jhamtse Gatsal experienced an outbreak of mumps, which she consulted on. Recently, Marina represented the school at the Port Townsend Film Festival for a showing of Tashi and the Monk, a powerful documentary about the orphanage. Photo: nurses at the school.

Around the Water Cooler

King Holmes was toasted and roasted at a large gathering to celebrate his years as founding Chair of Global Health. Among the toasters: President Michael Young, Deans Howard Frumkin and Paul Ramsey, Chair Judith Wasserheit, Patty Garcia from Peru, Roger Glass from NIH, and Haile Debas from the U. of California. See the light-hearted tribute video.

David Fleming (Epi) has been named vice president for Public Health Impact at PATH, where he will lead programs for reproductive health, noncommunicable diseases, malaria control and more. He continues to serve on the annual holiday celebration at 3:30 pm Wednesday, Dec. 17, at the South Campus Center (Room 316). All students, faculty, staff, family and friends are invited.
