Who Knew??

Judith Wasserheit (GH, Epi) got a cadaver for her

13th birthday. Her mother was chair of special anatomy at the first Podiatric Medical School in the US. "We'd go up to the morgue on weekends and my mother would guide me in dissecting this cadaver," said Wasserheit, chair of Global Health, who was featured in the July Close Up. "I would come home and stink of formaldehyde."

Congrats!

PhD student Kristjana Ásbjörnsdóttir (Epi) won the International AIDS Society Lange-Van Tongeren Young Investigator Award. Her research on HIV-infected infants and their response to antiretroviral therapy outscored more than 2,500 other abstracts.

The newest members of the Washington State Academy of Sciences include Shirley Beresford (OD, Epi, HServ), Dedra Buchwald (Epi) and Eric Larson (HServ), director of Group Health Research Institute. The three will be inducted in September for their outstanding scientific achievement and work to bring "the best available science to bear on issues within the State of Washington," the academy says. They are among 24 newly elected members; half are on faculty at the UW.

Health Services PhD student Rosa Avila was recently awarded a National Institutes of Health Diversity Fellowship Grant for her project, "Reducing Child Health Disparities with Health Policies: Is Health Reform Enough?"

Jane Pouzou and Victoria Balta (both DEOHS) each received $1,500 in research support from the Russell L. Castner Endowed Student Research Fund. Pouzou is a PhD student; Balta is pursuing an MPH. Castner, a Shoreline dentist, earned a degree in Environmental Health in 1971.

IHME was named the Outstanding Global Health Organization for 2015 by the Washington Global Health Alliance. The agency was cited for its large-scale impact on policy. It will be honored at WGHA's annual awards event on Oct. 8.

Making a Difference

Students in a Health Impact Assessment (HIA) course teamed up with the Seattle Department of Transportation and the city's Department of Planning and Development to conduct an HIA of the Delridge Multimodal Corridor Project in West Seattle. The project aims to transform the area crossed by busy roads into safer and healthier public spaces. Offered spring quarter, the course is taught by Andrew Dannenberg and Edmund Seto (both DEOHS) and Fritz Wagner from the Department of Urban Design and Planning. Students learn the principles behind an HIA and how to conduct one. The students came mostly from the School of Public Health, College of Built Environments, and Evans School of Public Policy.

Around the Water Cooler

Jared Baeten (GH, Epi) was appointed to the National Institutes of Health AIDS Clinical Studies and Epidemiology Study Section. Members review grant applications submitted to the NIH.

Bill Daniell (DEOHS) was appointed to the King
