Who Knew??

Graduating PhD student Leila Zelnick (Biostat) counts

playing the mbira among her many hobbies. The mbira, or thumb piano, is made up of metal keys on a wooden board. Leila has played since 2007, but spent a month in Zimbabwe last year studying with master mbira players (see photo of her on our Facebook page). Leila will join UW Nephrology and the Kidney Research Institute to continue her research in kidney and cardiovascular disease.

Congrats!

Nearly 500 students graduated from the School last week, including 51 with PhDs, 268 with master's degrees and 175 with undergraduate diplomas. Check out photos from the Graduation. You can also watch the address to SPH grads from Gates Foundation CEO Sue Desmond-Hellmann as well as PhD Omenn Award winner Peter Cherutich's talk.

Incoming PhD student Janeth Sanchez (HServ) won a $10,000 Grayston-Day Fellowship from SPH. Janeth is currently living in Clint, TX, where she works as a National Outreach Network Community/Cancer Health Educator at the National Cancer Institute.

Health Alliance International (HAI) was one of 12 global organizations to win a Recognition Prize as part of USAID's "Turning Data into Action Award." HAI was honored for its mobile phone health project with expectant mothers in Timor-Leste.

MHA student Charles Lee was nominated and appointed to serve on the American College of Healthcare Executives' Student Committee.

Winners of the 2015-16 SPH Endowed Fellowships ($5,000 each) are MPH student Victoria Balta (DEOHS) and PhD student Monisha Sharma (Epi). Victoria is working on a project to develop a protocol for processing and testing geoduck samples for viral and bacterial contamination. Monisha's dissertation focuses on evaluating strategies to expand HIV testing and links to care in sub-Saharan Africa.

Making a Difference

Elementary school students in Seattle don't get enough time to finish their lunch, according to research from our Nutritional Sciences students. Eighteen graduate students in Donna Johnson's Public Health Nutrition Class - working with instructor Mary Podrabsky - spent the winter quarter documenting the lack of lunch time at seven city schools. They found children had only 12 minutes of "seated time" on average; district policy calls for 20 minutes. Their report was presented recently to the Seattle Public School's Wellness Task Force, and was cited by parents at a School Board meeting. The grad students also interviewed principals, crunched surveys of kitchen managers, and did a literature review to show the public health impacts of poor nutrition. Pictured are three of the grad students: Toi Sennhauser, Kelsey Schmidt and Torissa Sorenson.

Around the Water Cooler

William Daniell (DEOHS) is serving on the Green Duwamish Watershed Advisory Group to devise a strategic plan to coordinate projects and programs to improve the health of the entire watershed.
