

What to expect:

- He Oranga Ngākau: Māori understandings of trauma informed care
- Upcoming events for faculty development
- Faculty Spotlight — Anjolie Ganti

He Oranga Ngākau: Māori understandings of trauma informed care

Within the indigenous communities in Seattle and abroad, there is a story about trauma, which is rooted in colonization. However, Linda Tuhiwai Smith guides us through the story of survivorship through the work she and her colleagues have done in order to move current and future generations of Māori communities in New Zealand towards a path of healing.

WHAT CAN WE DO >

A quick look at upcoming events in June

- June 16 | 12:30 - 6:30 p.m.
Global Health Systems and Policy Implementation Symposium Series
- June 20 | 12 - 1 p.m.
Next FDP Meeting: Introduction to Promotion and Tenure within SPH

UWFT UPDATES

Stay informed on all things UWFT.
>> May 2023 Newsletter Update <<

Faculty Spotlight — Anjolie Ganti

Anjolie Ganti never planned to have a career in academia. But she always had a desire to actively learn and help others by working with communities on the social justice and health equity issues that she cared so deeply about.

READ SPOTLIGHT >

UW HOME

SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

FACULTY

CONTACT US | PRIVACY | TERMS

© 2023 University of Washington School of Public Health
3980 15th Ave NE, Seattle, WA 98105

This email was sent to
Unsubscribe or change your email preferences